Some Interesting Literature Being Sent out by The Industrial League.

Facts Stranger Than Fiction

For the past five years a most sensational instance of rural development has taken place in the Mississippi Valley, in the vicinity of Reelfoot Lake and especially in that portion contiguous to Hickman, Ky.

So much so that today its agricultural resources are amazing.

The attraction here for both planter and investor has been so great that both the City of Hickman and the county in which it is situated have almost doubled in population in five years.

None of this has been the result of flaming advertisement. There has been no blast of trumpet nor the rattle of drum and cymbal to attract the attention of the public. MERIT has been the attraction here, merit of its most wonderfully productive soil, the equal of which is seldom found and its superior never, and for this cause its fame has spread throughout this continent.

As the news of its marvelous productiveness spread, the world began to take notice and it found here on the banks of the Mississippi, under the finest of climatic conditions, many thousands of acres of as fertile soil as the sun shines on still in the wild, erstwhile considered of but little value except for the timber. Many, realizing the possibilities, grasped the opportunity and in the short space of less than a decade, thousands of acres of these forest lands are now under the grind of the plow and unheaped of yields of cotton, corn, alfalfa, etc., are being harvested and brought to Hickman market and converted into cash.

One good thing calls for another and now a new railroad is just being completed and its trains began running into Hickman May 13th, 1911. This new railroad traverses this newly settled, rich farming section and also the finest timber belt, perhaps, east of the Mississippi River. Another railroad has now under construction, a belt line encircling the entire City of Hickman and the right-of-way of still another railroad from the West has already been secured to the bank of the river opposite Hickman and indications are that a bridge will span the river here in the near future.

Besides the present railroad facilities and the additional facilities which the new roads will furnish, let's not forget the "Father of Waters" with all of its tonnage capacity and the permanent guarantee it gives to Hickman of as low freight rates as any city in the union enjoys, and that the river shipping facilities will be greatly augmented by the great shallow water boat line that will soon be in operation at Hickman. Considering the wonderful growth of the town in this remarkably short space of 5 years with but one railroad, what must all these developments mean for the future growth of Hickman?

Who would vouchsafe even a prediction?

Our Mission

The rapid growth of Hickman, Ky., in the past five years has filled its present space to overflowing. In the present business district, every available lot is occupied, and owing to its peculiar contour, no more space can be taken in, being confined by the river on the North, an immense bluff on the South and East and the very low bottom land on the West. The present residence section has assumed a similar aspect, there being but few desirable residence lots unoccupied and these few are very much in demand.

Confronted with these unalterable conditions, it became necessary for the city to find relief for this congested situation in order that it might OPEN WIDE its doors and deny admission to no one. For the purpose of supplying manufacturing sites and business and residence locations for the coming multitudes, a most beautiful and convenient plot of ground has been secured, adjoining the Eastern corporation line of Hickman. High and practically level and accessible to the farming sections with no hills to climb. Within five minutes walk of the present city schools and Carnegie Library and accessible to city water and electric lights and being just outside the city limits, it has the benefit of rural mail delivery. We have ample railroad and belt line facilities and river frontage there to handle the commerce of a large city, and all this without bonded indebtedness.

No place in America affords a more picturesque scenery than this. THE INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE ADDITION to Hickman, Ky. It is situated on a 75-foot elevation, overlooking the Mississippi River, giving a splendid view of the river and its meanderings for miles up and down, while a beautiful landscape, dotted here and there with small skirts of woodland, stretches out in bold view until it meets the horizon.

Let's remember, too, that it is not an isolated prairie, but that it is in the midst of many handsome homes already, some of them costing approximately $10,000.00 and it constitutes a large part of a city which, with its suburbs has already a population of 6246 according to the census of 1910, and is the only possible direction in which the city can hope to extend its borders.

As an inducement to those who desire to improve their present condition, to choose Hickman as their destination, the lots in this beautiful new part of the city are being offered for sale at a very low figure, compared with their actual value, and with such favorable prospects for their rapid enhancement in value as the city continues to grow in size and commercial importance. Both residence and business lots are being sold on easy terms, while factory sites are offered FREE to any manufactory that will occupy them.

Hickman, Ky., has easily the most promising future of any town in its class in the South and pennies invested in Hickman real estate now will mean dollars to the investor in a few short years.

Such an opportunity as this is very rare.

We welcome one and all to come and share in these great possibilities.

DEVICE TO CHECK LIGHTNING

Simple Contrivance, Easily Put Together and Inexpensive, Will Save Many Head of Stock.

(By J. E. BRIDGEMAN.)

An astonishing number of stock are killed each season by lightning, and not a few human beings, and in almost every case the dead stock is found near a wire fence. There is no doubt but that a large portion of this stock and human life could be saved by grounding the wires of the fence, but as this calls for a large sized, rather expensive wire, or iron rod, it is seldom done.

By using an easily constructed device any ordinary, smooth fence wire may be driven four or five feet deep in the hardest soil—at either depth the wire is sure to be in damp or wet soil at all seasons of the year. Two 1x12-inch boards, four or five feet long, are shaped as shown in the right-hand figure of the cut. The step-shaped notches should be about six inches in height and one and one-half inches deep; in the top center of each step a small groove is cut, as shown by the dots leading to B. These should be one-fourth inch wide and about one-eighth of an inch deep so that when the two pieces are fastened together each step has a one-fourth-inch hole its entire length. The grooves should be as smooth and straight as possible, but can be cut with an ordinary pocket knife if no other tool is at hand.

Fasten the lower ends of the boards together with a small bolt, as shown in the left-hand figure; hold the top together with the left hand, set the device where wanted and drop the wire in the top hole; drive it down to the wood, lift the device and place the wire in the next hole, and so on until the last hole is reached.

In this manner a very small wire may be driven in the ground without bending, as only six inches of same is above the wood at one time. Splice the ground wire and connect same to each wire of the fence and you will have a first-class lightning arrester.

The distance apart these ground wires should be placed is a question—the writer places them every eight or ten rods.

Plenty of shows now a days.
